

Kimono series

Designed by Pascal Bosetti, Germany

For modern Japanese people, the kimono is a symbol of thoughtfulness, grace and respect for tradition, which is exactly where designer Pascal Bosetti has drawn his inspiration for Kimono. The similarities between the chair and its source of inspiration are particularly evident in the seams on the seat, which add both a graphic look and separate the arms and cover from each other – just like a real kimono. Kimono is moulded, and will therefore hold its characteristic curved shape for many years to come. The soft seat upholstery also means that your dinner parties will probably never make it into the living room.

Meet the designer

My designs are stringent, functional and poetic at the same time. I have a great passion for honest craftsmanship and good materials, and my background as a designer and craftsman affects all the choices I make. I choose my materials with care, and I treat each material differently with great respect and curiosity for how they behave alone or when they're interacting with others. I do all this to create the perfect design where aesthetics, functionality and good craftsmanship are harmoniously fused together.
